Welcomes the Commission’s Communication “Towards a comprehensive Strategy with Africa” of 9 March and sees it as a step towards a truly geopolitical partnership (EPP 9);

Underlines that Europe and Africa are in close geographical proximity, have strong, historical, cultural and socio-economic ties, which [AMs 1,7, 8] are being brought ever closer by the increase in numerous [AM 7] shared challenges and strategic interests; ranging from advancing human rights and democracy, lifting communities out of poverty and providing decent living conditions through the provision of economic opportunities, sustainable development or good governance, and potential of migration for meaningful employment opportunities and development [AMs 1, 2, 4, 7, 9, 10, 41]; strengthening trade and investment relations, security, counter-terrorism, fighting organized crime and human trafficking, to reforming multilateral institutions and global trade, environment, food security, access to water, population growth, urbanisation, energy issues, advancing public health, access to health care, climate change, [AMs 1, 2, 4, 7, 9, 10, 41]; Emphasises that the EU’s relations with Africa are of utmost importance for the future of both our continents and that the prosperity of the two continents are intimately linked, [AM 1], which calls for a holistic [AM 1] continental-African approach that can reconcile these divergent strands into a comprehensive coherent strategy which will be measured in its output, monitored and evaluated continuously [AM 8, 74], increased coherence between EU policies [AM 1], result-oriented transparent allocation [3, 5] of EU resources and a reinvigorated political alliance [AM 3]; which must go beyond the traditional development and humanitarian cooperation in order to truly lift our partnership to its full potential [AM9].

COMP 2 on paragraph 2

AMs 19 (Millán Mon), 20 (Pisapia), 22 (Kypouropoulos), 24 (Ştefănuță), 25 (Wiseler-Lima), 26 (Wiseler-Lima), 48 (Fotyga), 72 (Fotyga), 75 (Fotyga), 85 (Villanueva Ruiz), 92 (Millán Mon); 148 (Wiseler-Lima);

Underlines that the EU-AU partnership can only be successful if it is truly a partnership of equals, meaning a more balanced, fairer and meaningful partnership, built on own responsibility and solidarity and a common vision for our future; reiterates thus its calls for a true “continent to continent” partnership between the European Union and the Africa Union [148 EPP];

Recalls that Africa is our closest neighbour, home to over 1 billion people and more than half of the world’s population growth by 2050 is expected to take place in Africa, while six out of the ten fastest growing economies in the world are African [AM 48]; Stresses that the EU and its Member States constitute Africa’s biggest partner on all accounts: investment, trade, development aid, humanitarian assistance and security; however this increasingly close cooperation is yet to result in a shared understanding or viable strategic partnership, in line with shared interests, growth potential, geographical proximity and centuries-old links between two continents[AM 72]; Underlines that the process of sustainable [AM 20] development on the African continent is of key importance for the prosperity, stability and security of both the EU and Africa, which are key conditions for economic and social development for Africans as identified in the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) [AMs 19, 20, 22, 24, 85] . Stresses that the EU must be confident in creating a fresh and modern approach to its Africa policy[AM 75] [148] based on a clear understanding of their respective and mutual interests and responsibilities, reflecting the comprehensiveness and maturity of their relations [25, 85]; Is of the firm opinion that our partnership must be based on clear positions and priorities identified by our African partners and in this light believes that the upcoming 6th AU-EU Summit this fall provides a timely opportunity to listen to the African partners, to exchange on reciprocal demands and proposals and to define common objectives in order to enshrine them in the upcoming new mutually-beneficial joint strategy [AM 26] which reflects the interests of both sides and strengthens the ties between the two continents [AM 92].

AMs 6 (Maurel), 13 (Tudorache), 15 (Pisapia), 23 (Fotyga), 40 (Strik), 42 (Bilčík), 43 (Auštrevičius), 44 (Maurel), 46 (Ștefănuță) 85 (Villanueva Ruiz), 90 (Wiseler-Lima), 148 (Wiseler-Lima), 194 (Fotyga)

Stresses the urgent need to step up synergies and coherence between all the legal and political frameworks on which EU-Africa relations are based on in order to be more effective and sustainable [AM 15], with a stronger long-term, multi-faceted and multi- sectoral [AM 13] partnership, which should also translate into stronger political cooperation and effective coordination [AM 13] built on equality, trust, mutual respect, solidarity, sovereignty, shared values and a common vision for our future [AMs 40, 44, 85, 148]; in this regard, highlights the importance of human rights, democracy, peace and security, as well as good governance, sustainable development, rule of law, free and fair elections, law-based and peaceful transitions of power in African countries, gender equality, as the necessary foundations for a sustainable, inclusive and mutually beneficial EU-Africa partnership [AMs 6, 23, 40, 42, 43]; Stresses that a strong EU-Africa partnership needs a strong African Union, highlights the important role of the EU in supporting the African Union to exercise its mandate more effectively, in building peace and security across the continent and in driving the continental integration progress [AM 46] as well as the institutionalization of the African Union, including the Pan-African Parliament, through the sharing of best practices as well as technical and financial assistance [AM 90].

welcomes the proposal for a pan-African programme in the context of the new Neighbourhood, Development and International Cooperation Instrument (NDICI) aimed at addressing the challenges of the African continent as a whole; (AM 15, 194)

COMP 4 on paragraph 4

AMs 12 (Millán Mon), 52 (Castaldo), 54 (Wiseler-Lima), 56 (Berg), 57 (Pisapia), 58 (McAllister), 59 (Maurel), 60 (van Dalen), 61 (Strik), 67 (Fotyga), 166 (Strik)

Reiterates support to Africa [AM 52] in the undergoing major processes [AMs 57, 58] of integration at regional, continental and international levels and notes that Europe and Africa have a shared interest to cooperate on multilateralism and common challenges that can only be addressed effectively by working together [AMs 58, 61]; stresses the need to overcome divisions, where they exist, especially in areas of key strategic importance, such as meeting international standards and practices in trade, human rights, social justice, gender equality, sustainable development and positioning in international organisations [AM 52, 59, 60] is of the opinion that a continent-to-continent holistic partnership should also enable further regionalisation [AMs 57, 166]; Reiterates its continued support to regional integration and regional organisations, such as among others ECOWAS (Economic Community of West African State), CEMAC (The Central African Economic and Monetary Community), EAC (East African Community), SADC (South Africa Development Community), IGAD (Intergovernmental Authority on Development) and ECCAS (Economic Community of Central African States), as well as the ICGLR (International Conference on the Great Lakes Region) (AM54) Supports the view that the EU must maintain flexible country-to-country and sub-regional approaches that tailor its engagement and support to the specific needs and circumstances of each country within the five regions of Africa [AM 67]; Calls for an update of the various EU regional policies towards sub regions of Africa, such as North Africa, Gulf of Guinea, Sahel, Great Lakes and Horn of Africa [AMs 12, 54, 56 57]; regrets the fact that 25 years on from the start of the Barcelona Process, the creation of an area of shared prosperity, stability and freedom with the southern neighbourhood countries is still far from being completed; [AM 12]

COMP 5 on paragraph 5

AMs 9 (Wiseler-Lima), 10 (Villanueva Ruiz), 63 (Wiseler-Lima), 78 (Nart), 79 (Fotyga), 80 (Wiseler-Lima), 81 (Maurel), 83 (Bilčík), 86 (Castaldo), 87 (Pisapia), 89 (Fotyga), 98 (Fotyga), 75 (Fotyga)

Welcomes the five partnerships in the proposed new strategy [AM 9, 86] believes that additionally it should be updated to reflect Africa's health and economic needs in addressing the COVID-19 crisis [AMs 81]; calls for a strong, constant, ambitious [AM 83] and coherent [AMs 78, 80] EU engagement in the security, stability and development of Africa including promoting the green transition and energy access, digital transformation, sustainable growth and jobs, peace and governance, and a balanced and comprehensive approach to migration and mobility [AM 80, 86]; recognises that efforts were made to include the voices and interests of our African partners, but also notes that some voices expressed disappointment about a perceived lack of the communication with some African partners before its publication; [AM 79] however points to the need to clearly define how the new strategy is supposed to be implemented and indicate which EU actor is in charge of doing what [AM 9]; underlines the importance of future relations with Africa requires a broad involvement of civil societies of both continents; calls for a stronger engagement on all levels, including non-governmental organisations (NGOs), business, academia, think tanks, cultural and religious institutions, trade unions, and others [AMs 10, 87, 98]; Strongly welcomes the signals sent by Commission President Ursula von der Leyen to make relations with Africa a centre piece of her mandate [AM 63], in this regard, welcomes that the very first visit of the new President of the European Commission was to Africa and calls for more frequent high level meetings and contacts [AM 75]; Considers that such personal encounters on the top-level are of utmost importance since next to fostering personal bonds, they also raise the public awareness of our partnership in our respective national medias; Calls therefore for a further intensification of these high-level meetings and exchanges, including business and civil society forums and meetings [AM 63] Regrets that the Communication lacks clear proposals for coordinated approaches between the EU and the AU to tackle common challenges which could be addressed jointly in multilateral systems (e.g. UN); stresses that HRVP and EU Missions in capitals throughout the African continent should be more active in presenting EU policy objectives. Encourages European think tanks and academia in this regard to cooperate more actively with their African counterparts [AM 89]; Underlines the need to adopt, within the Africa-EU partnership, a coordinated and comprehensive approach, both between the EU-AU and among the EU and its Member States, as provided for by Article 210 TFEU; calls on the EU to step up this joint perspective in view of the next EU-Africa Summit scheduled for 2020 [AM 78];

AMs 101 (Fotyga), 116 (Castaldo), 117 (Wiseler-Lima), 118 (Nart), 120 (McAllister), 121 (Nart), 122 (Lega), 125 (Maurel), 130 (Fotyga), 177 (Wiseler-Lima),

Notes that Africa's potential attracts increased interest from many players on the world scene and expresses concern that in many areas Africa has become a new arena of great power competition; [AM 101, 116]; Stresses that the EU is among the first to help the African continent [AM 125] while destructive policies employed by other actors lead to the detriment of [AM 120] African nations while also having negative impacts on the EU [AM 122]; Underlines that the EU at its core, in its political and economic relations with third countries, is motivated by the advance of fundamental rights, and the support to democratic institutions and democratic accountability, and whereas third actors like for example China pursue in our eyes other objectives which at times pose a concern to us; stresses that our objective is to strengthen resilience and independence of our African partners [AM 177]; therefore regrets that actions by other players [AM 122], especially China and Russia, are advancing their geopolitical interests [AM 120] and focused on a growing unilateralism [AM 121] and their own benefits at the expense of the sovereignty of African countries [AM 125] and European security; calls on the EU to seek a coordination with each country truly interested in a prosperous and positive long-term development of the African continent, based on the full respect of human rights, media freedom and accountability, transparent and responsive governance and the combat against corruption, which are vital elements for ensuring a stable and inclusive political, social and economic environment in Africa; calls on the EU to develop a strategic and long-term response to the Chinese Belt and Road Initiative (BRI), which should be guided by our shared values as well as the priorities and needs articulated by our African neighbours [AMs 116, 117, 118]; Stresses that the EU and its Member States need to become a source of stability and reliability in the region. Believes that the European Union needs to play a bigger geopolitical role in Africa and establish relations that account for the good of all; [AM 130]

COMP 7 on paragraph 7

AMs 1 (Pisapia), 30 (Maurel), 50 (Ștefănuță), 139 (Fotyga), 140 (Millán Mon), 143 (Nart), 144 (Pisapia), 145 (Castaldo), 147 (Auštrevičius), 149 (McAllister), 150 (Nart), 161 (Pisapia), 172 (Fotyga), 179 (Wiseler-Lima), 183 (Wiseler-Lima),

Welcomes that the EU considers peace and security in Africa as key conditions for sustainable development and that the Union is committed to “markedly step up its support to Africa in cooperation with the international community” (AM 139); shares the opinion that the matter of security in Africa is of great importance for the development of the continent [AM 140] supported by regional and international organizations, while African states are the foremost guarantors of their own security [AMs 149]; therefore calls the EU to continue its efforts to [AMs 143, 149] work in cooperation with its African partners in the further development of an African peace and security architecture to achieve long-term peace and stability [AM 149] and overcome the crises and conflicts on that continent through an integrated approach that harnesses all available tools, including support for developing African security and defence capabilities and its military operations, civilian missions [AMs 140, 143], peacebuilding and demilitarization projects [AM 147] with respect for international human rights and humanitarian law and the independence and sovereignty of African countries [AMs 1, 145], and support for initiatives coming from the AU, regional organizations such as ECOWAS or G5 Sahel [AM 143]; encourages Member States to participate in EU missions and operations and welcomes bilateral efforts contributing to peace and stability and urges the Council in this respect to swiftly approve the European Peace Facility in order to provide a more comprehensive assistance to African partners in regions affected by conflict [140, 143]; emphasizes the importance of multilateral cooperation within the AU-EU-UN triangle in the field of local, regional and international security and the role of civil society actors in peacekeeping and peace-building efforts [AMs 144, 150]; recalls in this light that security sector reform, justice reform, good governance, democratic accountability, and the protection of civilians are a prerequisite for winning the trust of populations in their governments and security forces; further underlines the civil-military nexus and the need to better streamline both components of the CSDP missions [AM 183]; Supports increasingly proactive approach taken by cooperative regional security organizations towards the full operationalisation of the African Peace and Security Architecture (APSA) which provides the African Union and regional level organisations with the needed tools to prevent, manage and resolve conflicts; [AMs 172, 179]; commends in particular initiatives such as G-5 Sahel given its increasingly pivotal role in taking decisive action to ensure peace and security by African nations in their own neighbourhood and calls on the Commission and Member States to increase political, financial, operational and logistical support to G-5 Sahel [AM 172] Stresses that in order to ensure appropriate levels of security and development, the African countries must have adequate capacities in all essential sectors, most importantly regarding security and defence; calls on the European Union to coordinate the development and security initiatives in which it is involved on the African continent as part of an integrated strategy that should include good governance, democracy, human rights, the rule of law and gender equality, with a particular focus on regions where vulnerabilities and tensions are the highest [AM 50]; Welcomes the cooperation between the EU and Africa in combating terrorism and armed groups[AM 30] in compliance with the international law; and calls, in the context of counter-terrorism policies, for the establishment of more transparent decision-making processes, increased-compliance with a human rights-based approach and more engagement with communities affected by these measures [AM 161];

Calls on the EU and its Member States to discover ways to assist African countries with medical supplies whenever possible [AM 233];

AMs 73 (Tudorache), 96 (Paet), 154 (Wiseler-Lima), 200 (Fotyga), 224 (Fotyga)

Underlines that Africa, as a resource rich continent, with dynamic and developing economies that show high levels of growth, a growing middle class and a young and creative population, is a continent of opportunities which has demonstrated on numerous occasions that economic progress and development is possible [AM 154]; Stresses the importance of continuing to boost Africa’s digital infrastructure in the process of digitalisation and to ensure proper connectivity and internet access across the continent, from rural to urban areas alike [AM 73]; Highlights that the digital economy in Africa provides not only opportunities for increased job creation and data for actionable insights, but also the basis for promoting human rights, accelerating access to quality basic services, improving transparency and accountability of governments, and enhancing democracy [AM 224]; Calls for a continued, strengthened, systematic and mutually beneficial cooperation with African states on digitalisation, innovative technologies and solutions at all levels of society, including on e-governance, e-commerce, digital skills and cybersecurity, in line with the Digitalisation for Development (D4D) approach [AM 96]; Calls on to work closely with African partners to ensure security, resilience and deterrence against cybercrime and to prevent the exploitation of the Internet for terrorism and violent extremism [AM 200] points to the need of structural economic reforms and the importance of advancing domestic production and manufacturing capacities, which would help to reduce the dependency on foreign imports; recalls the need for the EU to enhance support to SMEs and points to the opportunities of the EU's Executive Agency for Small and Medium-sized Enterprises (EASME) to promote business-to-business cooperation and joint ventures with African companies, which would furthermore not only increase the visibility of business opportunities but also foster the much-needed access to finance and access to technology through a transfer of know-how; Furthermore underlines the need to improve investments protection scheme to facilitate and encourage further investments; (163)

Calls upon the EU institutions and the Member States to be a more coherent and unified actor in dealing with the African continent and to hence advance internal coordination in order to better define a common way ahead; along this line highlights the need to develop a coherent and all-encompassing strategy towards Africa, which must build on existing African and European efforts and is centred on creating economic opportunities and jobs (AM 45)
