Dear [REDACTED],

I hope this message finds you well.

As a follow-up to the June 30 stakeholder meeting on criteria to identify endocrine disruptors, BEUC has published a position paper in which we express our deep concerns in the Commission's proposal and call on the EU to better protect consumers. Please find attached a copy of the paper for your information.

We hope the Commission will take our concerns into account. We look forward to have the opportunity to discuss our concerns with you in more detail after the summer break.

With kind regards

Dear [REDACTED]

Let me first apologize for my very late reply to your e-mail and for the fact that you had to remind me about my outstanding response. Due to extremely heavy workload over the last weeks and in the coming weeks I was and will not be in a position to meet you before mid-June. Can I suggest that you get in contact with my assistant, [REDACTED] (in copy), to set up a date in the second half of June.

Kind regards, [REDACTED]

Subject: Meeting with BEUC re. the development of criteria for identifying endocrine disruptors

Dear [REDACTED]

I write concerning the European Commission's work to define criteria for identifying chemicals with endocrine disrupting properties. BEUC, The European Consumer Organisation, is concerned that the delay in setting criteria for endocrine disruptors may create unnecessary health risks for consumers.

As head of the unit leading the Commission's work related to the criteria, I was hoping you might be available in the near future to meet with me and my colleague, [REDACTED], to discuss our concerns. We would also be very interested in learning more about the current status regarding the criteria as well as how the Commission plans to proceed once a set of final criteria have been proposed and adopted.

I look forward to your reply.

With kind regards,
