Dear [REDACTED],

The agenda planners have tried their very best but unfortunately the date offered is simply impossible for the First Vice-President due to previous commitments, which he cannot postpone nor cancel. The First Vice-President would of course be most happy to meet [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] but has kindly requested me to ask whether a later date, for example in January, would not be possible.

Many apologies and thank you very much in advance for your understanding.

Kind regards,

Helena

Dear Helena,

Thank you so much for the swift answer. We look forward to hearing back from you hopefully this week.

Fingers crossed!

Kind regards,

Dear [REDACTED]

Thank you for your e-mail. We are indeed a bit overloaded but the invitation is with the agenda planners and I hope to be able to get back to you still this week.

Thank you very much for your patience and understanding.

Kind regards,

Helena

Dear Helena,

I hope that you are doing well.

I know it's an extremely busy and uncertain period for you and your colleagues but I was wondering if there was any chance you could update us on our meeting request?

We have held the date in [REDACTED] diaries but if you tell me that there is no possibility that Mr Timmermans will be able to meet them on 3 Dec we can already inform them and plan ahead.

Thank you very much for your help and understanding.

Best,

[REDACTED]
