Dear [REDACTED]

Many thanks for your e-mail.

Unfortunately, my colleague [REDACTED] will be in a all day meeting on Tuesday, but I would be available to call and discuss our participation in the AmCham EU Healthcare Committee on Tuesday morning at 9.30 a.m.

Would that give a possibility?

Best regards,

[REDACTED]

Dear [REDACTED]

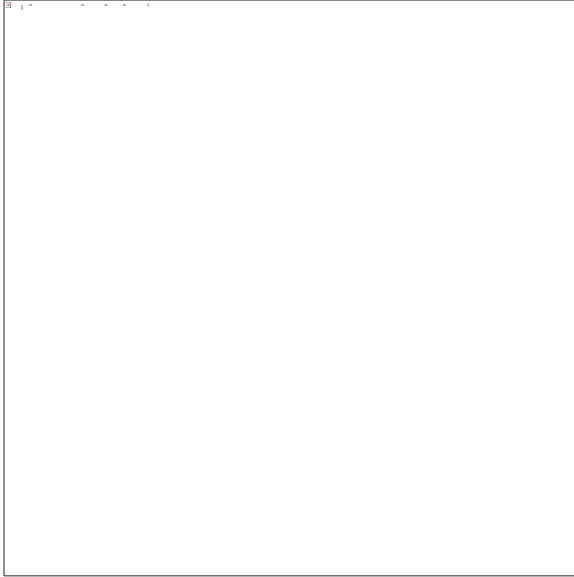

Apologies for my delayed reply. We would be pleased to further discuss this next week. I copy in the Chair of our AmCham EU Healthcare Committee, [REDACTED] (Pfizer), to also join our call.

Would you be available on Tuesday, 06 October, either 9.00-10.00, or between 13.00-16:00?

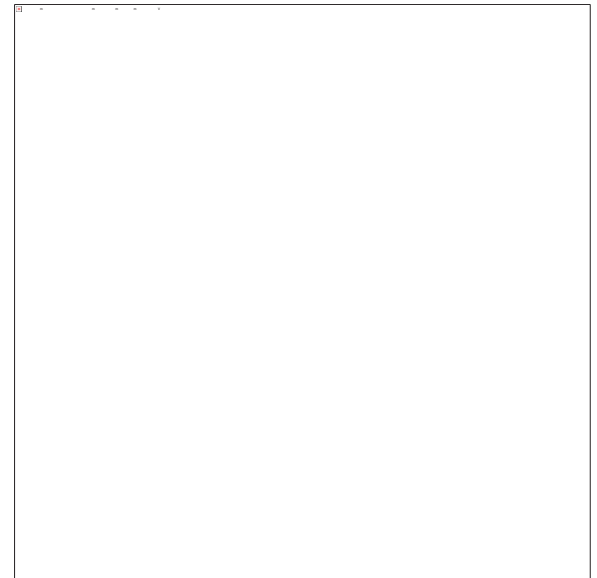

We look forward to connecting next week.

Kind regards,

[REDACTED]

Dear [REDACTED],

Thank you very much for your email.

We are happy to inform you that one of our colleagues in the Orphan and paediatrics team will join the event.

I copy them in this email and they will soon revert to you with the exact name of who is going to attend.

Have a nice day.
Kind regards,

Dear [REDACTED]

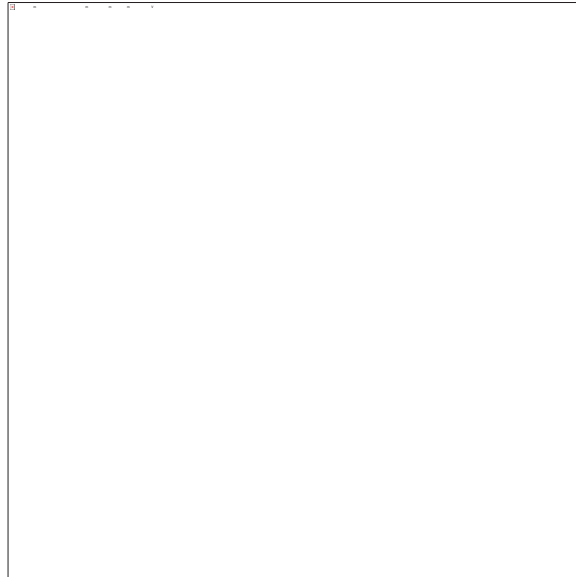

Thank you kindly for your reply. We of course understand that schedules must be quite busy at this time, and our meeting went well. Thank you.

As we too are keen to find another opportunity in the near future, might I already request if Thursday, 29 October 2020, in the afternoon, would be a potential alternative? We of course remain flexible to accommodate [REDACTED]'s preferred availability to ensure we have the opportunity to engage.

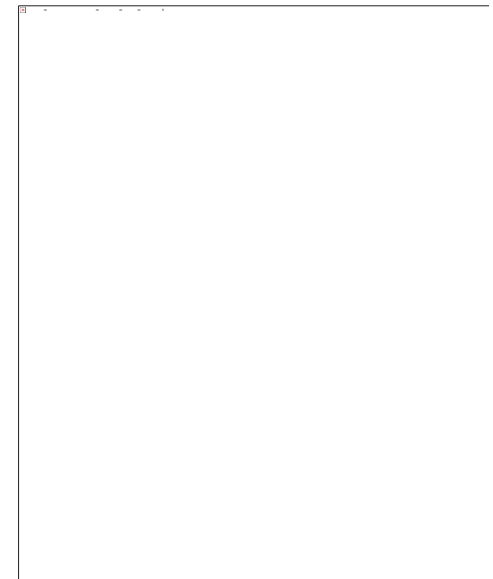

Thank you in advance for your time and consideration. Have a nice weekend in the meantime and please do not hesitate should I be able to provide any further information.

Kind regards,
