Dear [REDACTED],

On behalf of the European Commission, I would like to express gratitude for your participation in the high-level panel discussion at the Sustainable Carbon Cycles Conference. The panel has certainly triggered a debate on how public and private stakeholders can work together to scale up carbon removal solutions – not only on that day but also in a long run.

In order to continue building upon this excellent outcome, the European Commission has now launched a call for evidence to present its roadmap for the certification of carbon removals and collect feedback from relevant stakeholders. As already mentioned during the Conference, the Commission will come forth with the initiative on the EU regulatory framework for the certification of carbon removals by the end of 2022.

Should you wish to access the materials from the Conference, including recording of the sessions as well as presentations shared by the speakers, these have been made available and can be found here.

Thank you once again for your valuable contribution to the event.

Yours sincerely,

Electronically Signed

Yvon SLINGENBERG
