Dear Mr. Vaščega,

We are getting in touch on behalf of our client, Hewlett Packard Enterprise (HPE), to request some of your time for an exchange on the EU's future sustainable policy priorities.

HPE is one of the founders of Silicon Valley and a world-leading provider of servers, storage and networking solutions, and since the recent acquisition of Cray, the world #1 in supercomputing. Today, HPE contributes to digitising Europe's industry and public sector, working with cities, governments and companies, to safely capture and analyse data.

The protection of the environment occupies a very prominent place both in the business and innovation strategy and in the corporate values of HPE. HPE designs solutions and services to help its customers optimize their IT infrastructure to drive more efficient use of energy, materials, and resources. HPE recently joined the Ellen McArthur Foundations CE 100 group, a pre-competitive innovation program established to enable organizations to develop new opportunities and realize their Circular Economy ambitions faster.

We plan to organize a conference on sustainable development next year in Brussels and would be delighted to discuss with you some aspects of the agenda and to share our initiatives for circular economy and the fight against climate change.

[REDACTED] of Hewlett Packard Enterprise, will be travelling in Europe and attending the World Economic Forum. HPE is a strategic partner of the forum and is also establishing partnerships with various European businesses in the field of circular economy and energy efficiency.

Because Europe is a priority region for HPE, [REDACTED] would very much appreciate having a meeting with you on 27th of January in Brussels. Please do let us know if such a meeting can be of interest for you.

I remain at your disposal for any additional information. In the meantime, I wish you a Happy and Successful New Year.

Kind regards,

[REDACTED]
