Flash - meeting with Amazon on empowering consumers initiative - 16.02.2022

- The meeting was an opportunity for Amazon to introduce their [redacted].

- Amazon also inquired about the state of play of the initiative on Empowering Consumers for the Green Transition, and the links with other ongoing initiatives.

- JUST gave a brief outline of the initiative on Empowering Consumers for the Green Transition, explaining that it will consist of targeted amendments to existing consumer law.

- In response to questions from Amazon, JUST clarified that the initiative will not contain minimum technical requirements to be met by products or by environmental claims. It will also not introduce new technical information requirements, such as a new reparability score.

- Amazon inquired whether the initiative will still be adopted on 30 March 2022, as they were aware that the Green Claims initiative is no longer scheduled for adoption on this date.

- JUST confirmed that adoption is still scheduled for 30 March 2022.

- JUST also gave an overview of the structure of the Sustainable Consumption Pledge.

- Amazon mentioned their own internal Climate Action Pledge. JUST requested some more details, which Amazon agreed to provide in writing.