SESSION STRUCTURE
Informal Gathering of World Economic Leaders (IGWEL): Preventing a New Recession

Wednesday 25 May 09:30 - 11:00
Congress Centre, Parsenn

As geopolitical conflict, inflationary pressure and debt concerns mount, economic growth has slowed, leading to fears that a new global recession may be on the horizon.

What policies and business practices are needed to accelerate growth while putting in place the foundations for a sustainable and resilient economy over the long term?

Reporting press: Not Allowed.

Session duration: 90 minutes.

The session is strictly off the record

Please note: Only invited participants will be allowed entry; No accompanying staff will be allowed.

The session will include:

Introduced by

- [Name]

Chaired by

- Kristalina Georgieva, Managing Director, International Monetary Fund (IMF), Washington DC; Member of Board of Trustees of the World Economic Forum

Format

The session will be conducted as an interactive discussion among the approximately 40 high-level participants in the room.

The moderator will start the session by offering a few framing points.

She may turn to three to four “firestarters” to help open the conversation.

The moderator will then weave together the different views and insights to lead an engaging dialogue that aims to drive impact and shape global, regional and industry agendas.

She will bring in participants throughout the course of the discussion, asking them to offer brief interventions (2-3 minutes).

The moderator will conclude the session by identifying or asking a participant to identify key takeaways from the conversation.

Room layout: The room will be arranged as a fishbowl, with the moderator seated at one of the ends.
