European Commission

2 June 2016

Dear Mr Cañete,

The Financial Times is proud to present its European Infrastructure Summit on 30 November 2016 at Painters' Hall, London. We would be delighted if you would do us the honour of keynoting at the event.

This high-level summit will be attended by an audience of 200 of the world's leading investors in European infrastructure, alongside representatives from international public institutions. It will provide a forum for discussion of the opportunities for infrastructure investment in Europe, and a platform for our keynote speakers to make their investment case to a receptive and influential audience.

I have enclosed a copy of the latest agenda to show the format for this summit.

Financial Times Live has a strong history of delivering high level, informative and engaging summits, and we very much hope that you will accept our invitation to keynote during the day.
