Dear Eric Peters and [REDACTED],

Amazon's [REDACTED] will be in Brussels on 15 October. If of interest, our colleagues will be happy to make themselves available to meet with you and explain what actions, both reactive and proactive, Amazon takes to rid our sites of any illegal content and how effective they are.

As you know, Amazon strives to be Earth's most customer-centric company. We work hard to earn and maintain customer trust, and we strictly prohibit the sale of counterfeit products. To maintain this trust, we constantly innovate on behalf of our customers to improve the ways we detect and prevent counterfeits from reaching our customers. We are strongly committed to protecting customers, rights holders and sellers alike to guarantee authentic offers on Amazon.

We work closely with rights holders and enforcement authorities whose expertise is important to help us ensure a great, safe online shopping experience for customers. For example, we have participated in the European Commission's Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) on Online Sales of Counterfeit Goods since May 2011. We are now keen to seek cooperation in this area also with the French government and regulators.

Would you and interested members of your Unit have availabilities on the 15th October before 12 noon or after 17h o meet with our [REDACTED] [REDACTED] ?
