Hi [REDACTED]
Could you please organise something for around mid-July, for [REDACTED] and myself?
Many thanks

Dear [REDACTED],
Thanks for your response.
Would you and [REDACTED] be available and interested in a follow up discussion with [REDACTED] on AI, and a more substantive exchange on the DSA Package that we only very briefly touched upon last time? We'd value that now that the DSA consultation officially opened and we are formulating our response in the weeks ahead. Would you please have any availability to speak to [REDACTED] between mid June-mid July ahead of a summer break?
Thanks for considering.
Kind regards,
[REDACTED]

Dear [REDACTED]
Many thanks for sharing with us. We'll read this with great interest and will not hesitate to get back to you if we need more explanations.
Kind regards

Dear [REDACTED],

I hope this finds you well.

Following our exchanges in the past, I wanted to share with you Google's response to the AI white paper public consultation that we submitted today.

In January, our [REDACTED] visited Brussels to talk about artificial intelligence and how Google could help people and businesses succeed in the digital age through partnership. Much has changed since then due to COVID-19, but one thing hasn't—our commitment to the potential of partnership with Europe on AI, especially to tackle the pandemic and help people and the economy recovery.

Our submission today builds on those commitments -- and our experience working with AI, offering constructive solutions for how to regulate and accelerate the adoption of AI in Europe. We strongly agree with the Commission's desire to build a framework for AI innovation that will help create trust in this emerging technology. Our submission today is accompanied by a blogpost by [REDACTED] Google, in which he recognises that a sensible regulation may increase societal acceptance and public confidence in AI.

We look forward to your feedback and a continued dialogue. Please let me know if you'd be interested to discuss the details of our submissions at your convenience.

Kind regards,

[REDACTED]
