Aviation welcomes European Commission's sustainable and smart mobility strategy

Five leading European aviation associations, representing aircraft manufacturers, airlines, airports and air navigation service providers have welcomed the ambition of the European Commission's Sustainable and Smart Mobility Strategy, published earlier today.

The Strategy is aligned with and reinforces the sector's existing commitments towards a sustainable post-crisis future for aviation - and sets the stage for concrete decarbonisation proposals which will be unveiled next month.

Please find attached the joint response to today's announcement.
