(videoconference), 5 May 2021

Shell exchanged views in general on the green energy transition, the ambition to move towards renewables in the sectors of aviation, shipping, and heavy trucks. It was clear that business had decided that electrification of personal transport is the way forward, whereas for the hard to abate sectors other sustainable fuels would be needed. They also spoke about the importance of moving away from coal and the challenges certain countries in Europe, but also in Asia face. Operationally Shell said it would like to follow up on the following issues at work level:
