The Paris Peace Forum was launched in 2018 by French President Emmanuel Macron to promote collective action on today's most pressing global issues. The inaugural Forum attracted 65 Heads of State and convened leaders fro governmental and corporate sectors as well as from civil society.

The Paris Peace Forum is now an annual international event focused on reviving and improving global governance. Conceived as a response to rising tensions and the deterioration of the multilateral system the Forum is based on a simple idea cooperative solutions are key to tackling global problems and to ensuring durable peace.

This year the Forum w II be taking place November 12th and 13th and has been transformed into a fully digital event in light of the Covid situation. On November 13th Alexandra Palt L Oréal's Global Corporate Responsibility Officer will moderate a panel discussion on how companies are navigating the complexity of climate change and implementing multi-dimensional approaches to mitigate the climate risks.

The panel discussion will be a "closed-door" session with only about 25 Forum attendees made up of distinguished leaders from government business and NGOs.

Our proposed Panel for the Forum: How organizations navigate the complexity of climate change

Although companies are accustomed to adapting to changing market conditions the challenge of adapting to multi-factorial environmental risks is far greater. The complexity of climate risks for companies is further increased when also accounting for the potential societal effects induced by climate change.

However some companies are trying to navigate the complexity by adopting innovative approaches such as the planetary boundaries framework or internal carbon pricing that can capture & measure their environmental impacts and thus help define a mitigation strategy.

The present round-table will debate the newest ways companies or other organizations can future-proof their business models and sustainability strategies. What solutions are available and what organizational changes would they imply? The panel will include perspectives from a wide array of leaders from the corporate world as well as public institutions and civil society.
