

President Juncker at the SPD annual retreat (Jahresauftaktklausur)
8-9 February 2015

OUT OF SCOPE

What is the opinion of the Commission with regard to the press publishers' ancillary right in Germany?

- European copyright rules have achieved a high degree of harmonisation. However, Member States also keep a certain margin of discretion to lay down rules in their national legislation, so long as they are in compliance with the EU acquis and do not hamper the development of the digital single market.
- The Commission will monitor the practical implementation of this provision, particularly after Google's agreements with some press publishers to keep on aggregating their content in Google News.

1. EU Copyright policy - Current situation

The EU copyright acquis is a set of ten directives, the main of which is the Directive on Copyright in the Information Society ('InfoSoc Directive'). In addition, the Directive on the Enforcement of Intellectual Property Rights ('IPRED') covers horizontal civil enforcement aspects valid for all forms of intellectual property, including copyright. This acquis provides for a high level of copyright protection and has harmonised the key author and neighbouring rights and, to a lesser degree, exceptions and limitations to copyright. These are listed in EU directives but most of them remain optional for Member States to implement.

The Barroso II Commission developed policy and legislation on a number of specific copyright aspects, including the proposal and adoption of the directives on Orphan Works and on Collective Management of Rights, a Memorandum of Understanding on Out-of-commerce Works and a stakeholder dialogue to foster licencing solutions (Licences for Europe). The often heard argument that the Commission "has not done anything on copyright recently" should therefore be rejected.

There is however a wide expectation, buttressed by the announcements and political guidelines of President Juncker, that the new Commission will introduce further reform proposals covering certain 'core' aspects that have not been revisited since the adoption of the InfoSoc Directive in 2001. The modernisation of copyright has been formally included in the Commission Work Programme for 2015. Such modernisation can be delivered based on a review carried out recently by ex-DG MARKT, including a number of legal and economic studies. This has assessed the functioning of the current framework, the need to adjust certain rules and the impacts of possible changes, in particular on issues such as territoriality of copyright and exceptions. The new Commission will need to decide how to proceed with such reform prospects.

2. State of play of consultation

The Commission carried out a public consultation on the review of the EU copyright rules between December 2013 and March 2014, covering a large number of issues. Almost 10,000 replies were received, including from 11 Member States.

Furthermore, the Council Working Party had some exchanges of views during the Greek Presidency of the EU (first half of 2014). Discussions are also taking place in some Member States (e.g. DE, UK, ES, IE, AT, FI, SK, HR), either around national legislation reforms or the role of copyright and copyright enforcement in the digital economy more generally. The UK and ES have recently introduced changes to their national laws.

In the European Parliament, MEP Pavel Svoboda (EPP, CZ), the new chair of the JURI Committee (which traditionally has copyright in its competences) has set up an inter-group on copyright, while the only Pirate Party MEP, Julia Reda (Greens/EFA, DE) was appointed rapporteur on an own-initiative report on the implementation of the InfoSoc Directive and has held a series of hearings on the matter. Her draft report was published on 19 January 2015.

3. Main positions of stakeholders, MEPs, the SPD and Member States

Very different views were expressed during the public consultation by stakeholders, with users and institutional users (consumer organisations, libraries, cultural heritage institutions, etc.) calling for a review of EU copyright rules to facilitate access to content and right holders (authors, publishers, producers, etc.) largely considering that the current rules remain appropriate in the digital environment. Generally speaking, the stakeholder environment is very divided, although positions vary in tone and content depending on the issue at hand. A detailed overview is available in the report of the consultation mentioned above, available here: http://ec.europa.eu/internal_market/consultations/2013/copyright-rules/docs/contributions/consultation-report_en.pdf.
