Thanks! The timing works very well and they are actually two people - Lindsay Lewis is the Executive Director and [REDACTED] is [REDACTED]. Hope that's okay and thank you again.

Kind regards

Good afternoon,

Thank you for your meeting request with Christian Burgsmüller. A short 30-minute long meeting can be organized on Friday 28 October, 2016 at 11:00 a.m. Would that suit the agenda of your Executive Director whose name you did not mention in your email? Thanks.

Best,

Dear Christian

The Executive Director and [redacted] of Progressive Policy Institute (PPI), a policy think-tank based in Washington, D.C., will be in Brussels next week – Thursday 27 and Friday 28 and would like to ask for a 30min meeting with you.

PPI's focus is on innovation policy and a pro-trade, pro-growth agenda. A big priority is deepening the dialogue between the US-EU amid concerns that Congress/DC is not spending enough time and effort on working the relationship. And PPI is now strengthening our presence in Europe.

Together with Georgetown University PPI is convening experts on economics, tech and competition policy from both the EU and US to help define a tech-neutral, non-partisan approach to competition policy in an effort to align it with innovation policy. If you have a 30min slot to meet we'd like to introduce PPI to you and share some thoughts on competition policy and innovation going forward.

Kind regards

Michael
