Your application for access to Frontex documents

Dear Mr Semsrott,

In response to your application for access to Frontex documents, which has been registered on 7 August 2018, asking for access to

For all formal meetings held by the Frontex Consultative Forum on Fundamental Rights in 2016, 2017 and 2018 to date:

- Agendas of the meetings;
- Dates of the meetings and name and title of all attendees;
- Minutes of the meetings; and
- Documents used during the course of the meetings or produced for the purpose of these meetings, including but not limited to preparatory notes, briefings, reports, or memos;

I am pleased to inform you that Frontex can grant you access to all documents, held. You may find the documents attached.

Please note, however, that some limited parts of the documents you have requested fall under an exception to public access to documents as stipulated in Regulation (EC) No 1049/2001<sup>1</sup>, and have therefore been blanked out with a number next to them referring to a justifications as attached.

Kindly be informed that access to two documents you applied for cannot be granted as they:

1. contain information regarding the operational area. Ongoing operations tend to cover similar operational areas as the operations of preceding years in the same geographical area. In this regard, disclosing the coordinates of the operational areas of previous years, would be tantamount to disclosing the current operational areas.

The result of this will only be to hamper the course of ongoing operations, depriving them of their strategy and any element of surprise during border surveillance, ultimately obstructing their purpose to counter and prevent cross-border crime as well as unauthorized border crossings.

In this light, the disclosure of such information would undermine the protection of the public interest as regards public security in the sense of Article 4(1)(a) first indent of Regulation (EC) No 1049/2001.

2. contain detailed information regarding the modus operandi of law enforcement officials performing border control. Disclosing such information would expose the working methods applied in ongoing and future operations, thus obstructing them and the efforts made by the European Union and its Member States to counter and prevent cross-border crime and unauthorized border crossings. If this were to happen, public security would be affected. Consequentially, the text is not disclosed pursuant to the exception laid down in of Article 4(1)(a) first indent of Regulation (EC) No 1049/2001.

3. contaim names of third countries and disclosure of this information undermines the trust placed in Frontex by them. Once the relationship between Frontex and those third countries is impaired, it is foreseeable that these countries will refrain from cooperating with Frontex, respectively that an engagement of Frontex with these countries will no longer be possible. However, cooperation and engagement with third countries is essential for Frontex to exercise its mandate. Access to this text has to be refused as its disclosure would result in jeopardizing the ongoing and future international cooperation and engagement and thus undermine the protection of the public interest as regards international relations as stipulated in Article 4(1)(a) third indent of Regulation (EC) No 1049/2001.

A partial release of those two documents is not possible. This is based on the fact that Frontex, in its service to the public, is not only obliged to adhere to transparency principles but also to the principle of sound administration. The redaction as required by Article 4 of Regulation (EC) 1049/2001 would result in the release of short fragmented parts, the reading of which would be meaningless. This is considered not to be in line with the principle of sound administration, as the administrative burden necessary to identify and redact the releasable sections would be disproportionate and the very limited parts of the documents that were deemed releasable would have been non-informative. For this reason, it is not possible for us to grant you partial access to the two documents.

Kindly be reminded that the copyright of the documents rests with Frontex and that the existing rules on copyright may limit your right to reproduce or exploit the released documents.

Yours sincerely,

Hervé Caniard

Head of Transparency Office

The non-disclosed parts of the document contain details which would allow the reader to be made aware of the methods and criteria used by Frontex for carrying out such vulnerability assessments. Should such information be made public, it could lead to abuse by criminal networks who could use it to adjust their modus operandi. The disclosure of these documents must thus be refused as it has the potential to seriously jeopardize the effective control and surveillance of the external borders of the EU and the fight against cross-border crime. Refusal of the documents is therefore justified as their disclosure would undermine the protection of the public interest as regards public security, in the sense of Article 4(1)(a) of Regulation (EC) No 1049/2001.	5

Ongoing operations tend to cover similar operational areas as the operations of preceding years in the same geographical area. In this regard, disclosing the coordinates of the operational areas of previous years, would be tantamount to disclosing the current operational areas. The result of this will only be to hamper the course of ongoing operations, depriving them of their strategy and any element of surprise during border surveillance, ultimately obstructing their purpose to counter and prevent cross-border crime as well as unauthorized border crossings. In this light, the disclosure of such information would undermine the protection of the public interest as regards public security in the sense of Article 4(1)(a) first indent of Regulation (EC) No 1049/2001.
