Good afternoon

I am emailing on behalf [REDACTED] to ask whether Vice-President Dombrovskis would welcome the opportunity to contribute a chapter to AFME's tenth anniversary publication that we are aiming to publish this autumn.

Simon would be delighted if the Vice-President agreed to participate and would be happy to discuss further with the appropriate colleague if more information was required.

Kind regards.

Dear Vice-President Dombrovskis

It was good to see you briefly at EUROFI last week.

I am writing to ask whether you would be prepared to contribute a chapter to a tenth anniversary publication for AFME which we are aiming to publish in the autumn.

Over the last ten years, since AFME's creation in 2009 we have seen significant changes in Europe's capital markets both structural and regulatory. From our point of view, now would be a good time to take stock and focus on what the next ten years might look like for Europe's capital markets.

We are aiming to produce a publication that will provide a platform for different views and opinions on this important subject. We are delighted that [REDACTED] has agreed to contribute the lead chapter and we would be honoured if you would be prepared to contribute a chapter of 1200 – 1500 words. The central theme of the publication will be the future of Europe's capital markets. It will edited [REDACTED] We thought that you might want to focus on the topic of The future role of Capital Markets Union in Europe but it is, of course, at your discretion. It would be good to know reasonably soon if, in principle, you are able to participate. If so, we would be looking to receive copy by the middle of June.

Do let me know if you would like to discuss this directly with me or [REDACTED] (copied above) or require any further information at this stage.

I do hope you will be able to contribute to this timely publication.

Kind regards.
