Dear Commissioner Timmermans,

As anticipated, I am sending you the draft invitation to the event, together with a provisional timetable of the speakers.

I could not stress enough what a pleasure it would be for all of us if you could be present.

As you will notice from the composition of the panel, my intention was to cover various aspects of the circular economy.

From urbanistic planning to eco-innovation, I am expecting experts to give the audience not only a general perspective on the subject, but also practical examples in an effort to create what is often referred to in the field as "social enthusiasm".

I would be honoured if you could give a brief welcome speech on the fundamental role the circular economy plays in ensuring a sustainable future for the EU.

Needless to say, I am ready to accommodate any time constraint you might have and insert you at any point of the event.

Before officially sending out invitations, I wanted to make a final effort in order to see if you could be available for the event.

In the hope that you will be able to join us, I thank you once again for the courtesy and attention demonstrated.

Best Regards,

[REDACTED]
