Dear [REDACTED],

Thanks for your message and for the invitation. I unfortunately won't be available to speak at your event, but you may want to contact the team of Commissioner McGuinness or Executive Vice President Dombrovskis to explore whether someone would be available to speak on this topic.

Kind regards,
Antoine Colombani

Dear Mr Colombani,

I am delighted to invite you to speak at an online webinar panel on 2 March 16:30-17:30 on the topic of sustainable finance and the energy transition to 2050.

The webinar will be a moderated discussion focusing on the EU Taxonomy as a driver for sustainable energy between the panellists representing the European Parliament, a Member State and a representative of an energy company. I understand that the delegated act on taxonomy is being prepared by the Commission requiring a lot of resources and attention and not too much can be shared about this at the moment. Therefore, this panel aims to zoom out of the specific ongoing conversations on the delegated act and discuss on high level the process of how taxonomy came to being, the goals, and mechanism of working to achieve EU climate goals, potential evolution and impacts. The webinar format will follow as a moderated conversation. We would highly appreciate your participation in the panel.

The webinar is organised by Rud Pedersen Public Affairs and supported by International Association of Oil and Gas Producers (IOGP). The webinar is open to all, attracting usually an audience of over 100 people from policymakers in Brussels, permanent representations to the EU, to industry and stakeholders around Europe. The conversation is moderated [REDACTED]
