Subject: Second Post-programme Surveillance (PPS) Review Mission, 17-21 November, 2014

In the week of 17 November, Commission and ECB teams visited Dublin to undertake the second PPS mission. The mission was coordinated with the IMF's Post-Programme Monitoring (PPM) mission. The teams met with numerous public and private sector entities. The ESM also participated in the meetings on aspects related to its Early Warning System. The mission consisted of

The mission confirmed the much improved macro-financial environment and outlook. At the same time, it also corroborated signs of adjustment fatigue against the backdrop of an increasingly challenging political landscape as the popular support for the current government is fading. As a result, while the adjustment process undertaken under the EU-IMF financial assistance programme continues, its pace is slowing somewhat especially in public finances and some structural reforms. Financial reforms and the restructuring of the domestic banks continue to advance in reaction to the outcome of the ECB's Comprehensive Assessment (CA). The unsurprising results revealed a capital shortfall for PTSB, which the bank is expected to confront comfortably. A new state-backed company to boost SME lending may give rise to some new contingent liabilities.

The economic recovery is solid though some uncertainty remains concerning its underlying strength. In 2014, annual GDP growth could even exceed the latest Commission forecast of 4.6%. However, this figure may overestimates the underlying buoyancy of the economy, as net exports have been boosted partly by contracted production, which has no genuine impact on the Irish economy and may be a temporary factor². Domestic demand is expected to have contributed 2.3 percentage points to real GDP growth in 2014. As for 2015, investment and private consumption should continue to recover from low levels and drive GDP growth. The EUR 1 billion expansionary package in budget 2015 could add up to 0.3 percentage point to GDP growth. Conversely, the main uncertainties relate to the evolution of exports, which could be affected by changes in foreign contracting by resident multinationals and lower growth in the euro area. Thus, there is a particularly wide range in agents' annual 2015 growth forecasts from 3% to 5%.

Despite some unanticipated expenditure pressure in 2014, Ireland is expected to comply with the EDP recommendations in 2014 and next year. This is substantiated by their strong track record established over the programme years. Still, additional expenditure overruns were revealed during the mission (of EUR 500 million or 0.3% of GDP) in the health care sector compared to the 2015 Draft Budgetary Plan (DBP). Unlike previous years, these will not be offset by savings in other areas. There will also be a frontloaded capital transfer to Irish Water of EUR 277 million (0.15% of GDP) in 2014 following the decision to delay the introduction of the charge system to next year announced on 20 November (Box 1). This means the 2014 general government deficit is likely to be above 4.0% of GDP, above the 3.7% of GDP Commission autumn forecast, but still below the 2014 EDP ceiling of 5.1% of GDP. Some extra revenues are expected in late 2014 due to higher-than-projected growth but these will only partially compensate for the overruns. For 2015, despite tax cuts and increases in certain expenditures, the government affirmed it will reduce the deficit below the 3%-of-GDP reference value to exit the EDP. However, the margin is narrowing and medium-term risks emanate from possible spending overruns due to demographic changes, public service pay and pensions, climate change, education and the potential reclassification of Irish Water to the general government We believe that the 2015 budget deficit at 2.9% of GDP projected in the 2014 autumn forecast is still valid. There is also a need for a more effective medium term budgetary planning and a more binding framework to set expenditure ceilings.

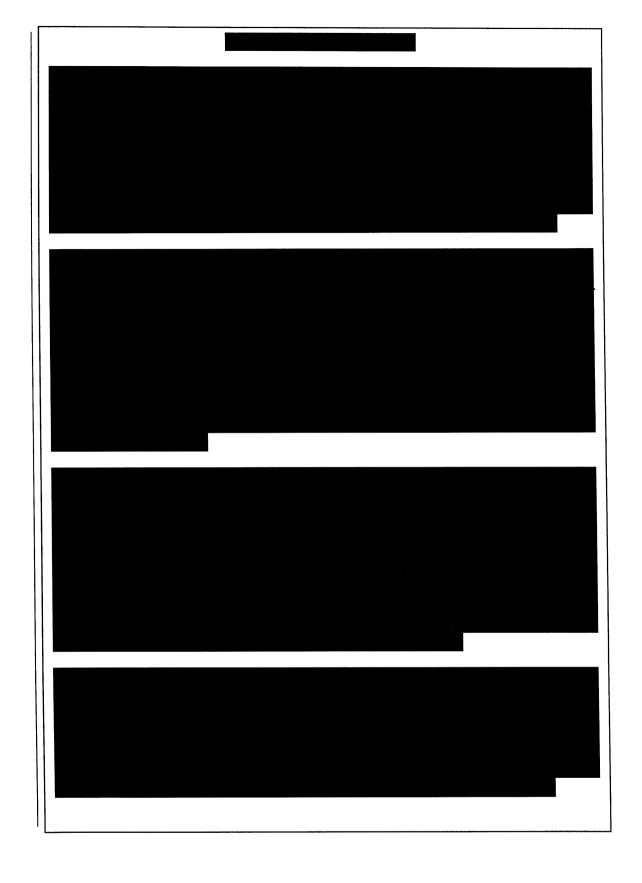

Financial reforms remain on track with focus on the outcome of the CA, arrears resolution and SME financing.

- As broadly expected, of the three main domestic banks, only PTSB did not meet the capital requirement under the CA's adverse scenario. It has submitted a capital plan to the ECB to address the EUR 855 million capital shortfall. The plan will be reviewed by the SSM Supervisory Board in December. There is some uncertainty as to whether EUR 400 million of contingent capital or "cocos" are eligible to meet the shortfall without conversion into equity. PTSB has mandated an external consultant to assist it in raising capital and has had extensive contacts with private investors. The bank's management is confident that any remaining gap not addressed via deleveraging and post-provision profits in 2014 can be filled by private capital. The authorities also indicated that a plan to restore Allied Irish Bank (AIB) to the private sector will be announced before Christmas.
- The third quarter 2014 mortgage arrears restructuring targets (MART) were met but about half of sustainable solutions continue to rely on legal action using the threat of repossession. Nevertheless, actual repossessions remain low but are increasing at an accelerated pace. There is anecdotal evidence that capacity constraints are beginning to emerge in the court system, reflecting the long duration of the process (with multiple adjournments). Commercial loan restructurings continue to progress though this remains a lengthy process. A pick up in the domestic property market has aided more portfolio sales.
- The state development corporation for SMEs, the Strategic Banking Corporation of Ireland (SBCI), is expected to begin providing loans via existing credit institutions towards the end of 2014. It will have about EUR 800 million (0.45% of GDP) in funds and some of the lending will involve state guarantees subject to 'de minimis' rules for state aid.

Structural reforms are making uneven progress. Reforms to further education and training are now advancing apace, even though it will take time before the new institutional setup and training programmes are entirely effective in addressing skills mismatches. The implementation of the JobPath programme should provide welcome additional activation support to the long-term unemployed starting in the second half of 2015. Key strands of reforms in healthcare are progressing, but further advances will be necessary to reap additional efficiency gains and better control health expenditure without compromising healthcare delivery. Enactment of the Legal Services Regulation Bill will not take place in 2014 as planned and the establishment of multidisciplinary practices faces increased uncertainty

Press outputs. On the final day of the mission, the Commission Services and ECB released a joint press statement. The IMF published a separate concluding statement the same day. The main messages were aligned.

Next steps. A timeline of events (endorsed with the policy brief) leading to the conclusion of the second PPS review by the Commission (and consultation with the EFC) is presented in Annex 1. The review will be discussed at the EWG/EFC meetings on 15-16 January 2015. A version of the Commission services' report will be published as an ECFIN Occasional Paper towards late January. A dedicated discussion of the implementation of MIP-tagged CSRs under specific monitoring will take place in the EPC on 18-19 February 2015 following the EWG/EFC meetings.
