

Battle for Missing Babies

Bitka za Nestale Bebe

May 17th, 2012

Vincent Degertt
Head of the European Delegation to Serbia

Mr. Degert,

I am writing to you as a concerned former citizen of Serbia. As the Head for the European delegation to Serbia I am seeking to make you aware of significant and serious allegations against Serbian authorities by its own citizens, with respect to baby trafficking. Early in 2005, hundreds of Serbian parents made claims to the Serbian government that the children they were told died at birth were in fact alive. From the period of 1970-2000, it is believed that upwards to 10,000 children, that reportedly died during or shortly after childbirth in various Hospitals throughout Serbia.

[REDACTED] If Serbia has nothing to hide, then it should not be afraid to open its historical records. [REDACTED]

Mr. Degert I am sure you are well aware of the current Stolen Babies scandal in Spain, where hundreds of thousands of babies were taken from their parents and given/sold to other families funneled through the Catholic church. Spanish authorities have not denied or suppressed the truth, but instead has allowed its citizens to investigate and seek out justice in the hopes of finding their lost loved ones. In Serbia, we want the government to do the same, accept responsibility to its citizens.

President Tadic had declared 2012 as the "Battle for Babies" in Serbia, in response to Serbia's need for better/improved equipment for children born premature and in need of specialized care. All the parents of missing babies in Serbia want is for their own "Baby Battle" to be recognized and for the books to be opened in various government organs that house birth/adoption records. For Serbia to desire to be part of the European Union, it must act in accordance to the laws and rights of its' citizens given by the constitution of their own government. Serbian citizens should not be initmated nor dismissed in this very important matter.

(should add something here about what we would like him to do or respond with)

Yours truly,
