Dear [REDACTED],

Thank you very much for the email below. I trust this reply finds you well.

[REDACTED] asked me to take over and schedule the meeting with you and GM.

On our side, the first possible dates are after Easter. Ideally in the week of the 12/04 or the 19/04.

Perhaps the best way to move forward would be by letting us know a couple of your preferred timeslots in these weeks and I am sure we will be able to find a common one.

Please don't hesitate to contact back.

I stay at your disposal if needed.

Kind regards,

[REDACTED]

Subject: Request for a meeting with General Motors

Dear [REDACTED],

I hope this email finds you well.

I am contacting you on behalf of General Motors to request a virtual meeting to present you GM's ongoing activities and investments towards building a zero-emissions future as well as discuss the European Commission's priorities in this space for the coming years.

In line with GM's vision for personal mobility "a world with zero crashes, zero emissions and zero congestion", the company is striving to deliver safer, cleaner and more efficient transportation solutions for its customers through the creation of electric, self-driving, connected vehicles and shared mobility services that will transform how we get around. Throughout the company, GM is focused on initiatives that capitalize on these new technologies and business models to create products, offer services and advocate for policy that looks at transportation as a system and mobility as a service.

Most recently GM laid out its vision for an all-electric future, committing to launching 30 new global electric vehicles by 2025.

In this context, GM representatives would appreciate the opportunity of a short virtual meeting at your earliest convenience (preferably in the afternoon CET given the time difference), to present you the work of GM in the area of electric and autonomous vehicles and explore ways of deepening the cooperation with the European Commission on these issues.

Thank you very much in advance for considering our request.

Kind regards,
