	The PAGE representatives briefly introduced the companies they represent and the current and future potential of LNG export from the US. They explained that the EU is an important export destination that has a potential to grow in the future. They inquired about the EU's long term view on LNG imports. The Commissioner explained that the EU lost significant volumes of gas from Russia and is preparing that there may be a total cut off from Russian gas at any moment. The gap left by Russian supplies provides a big opportunity for US LNG suppliers. The Commissioner also explained that long term gas contracts until 2050 are not against the EU climate policy.
