Dear Commissioner Breton,

Firstly, let me thank you personally for agreeing to our meeting on the 3rd December. I appreciated very much the productive discussion, and the fact that you could make time for us in your extremely busy schedule.

I also took good note of your questions regarding our company' s plans for the future and our cooperation with European partners. My team can follow up with your team separately to give you further information on this.

I strongly agree with your view that rules and regulations should be clear and equally applicable to everyone in the business world, in order to bring stability to the markets. The hard work, and vision you have shown in your first year in position, to make this happen, has been extremely impressive.

I have, however, been informed about the regrettable incident that occurred immediately following our productive meeting on Thursday.

I am sorry for the distress that this incident has caused you. The staff member responsible has been made aware of the seriousness of this mistake and I am assured that this will not occur again.

I trust that we can continue to have a productive dialogue in the future. I genuinely believe that Huawei can be part of the solution to Europe's digital sovereignty ambitions. I look forward to further discussions with you in the future.

Yours

Ken Hu
