Meeting with AGORA 18 04 2023 (online)

Agora: 4.1(b)-privacy , 4.1(b)-privacy

EU Commission: Jorge PINTO ANTUNES, 4.1(b)-privacy

Agora is a family of think tanks on energy, industry, transport and lately on sustainability in the land sector.

Agora informed about their modelling study on the role of EU land in the future climate policy and ambitions, using CAPRI model

Agora will analyse different scenarios, including dietary changes, the role of livestock, peatland, more biomass from agriculture with short rotation coppice, bioenergy with carbon capture and storage, the potential of new technologies currently not included in CAPRI.

Results will be published toward the end of this year.

The Commission asked to have more details on the scenario and highlighted the importance of results to contribute informing the policy debate on the post-2030 climate policy frame.

The commission also described the link between the CAP plans and the new climate ambitions in relation to ESR and LULUCF, emphasizing the importance to have the right incentives for win-win solutions for both climate and farmers, the necessity to have more granular sectorial information and the need to ensure flexibility to MS to reflect their economic and political contexts.
